

There is no legal nor logical reason why "locally oriented" subject matter cannot be broadcast on a national level. All "news" that is reported nationally happens on a local level somewhere it and I can read the local weather report for Madrid, Spain in any major newspaper in the country...and neither of them are complaining about that distribution of knowledge. Any claims that publicly available "local" events are protected regional information is preposterous. Sincerely,

Michael Dzyban